

Founded in 1981, AJHA exists to foster research and teaching of journalism history, to provide a forum, and to be a resource.

Greetings graduate students,

On behalf of the American Journalism Historians Association Graduate Student Committee, we would like to invite you to submit a paper to the 34th Annual AJHA National Conference, to be held October 8-10 in Oklahoma City.

Presenting at this conference is a tremendous opportunity to share your research in all fields related to the history of journalism, including print, broadcasting, advertising, public relations, and other forms of mass communication. Presenters will gain insight into their own work through feedback from experts in media history, have the chance to learn from the presentations of their peers in the field, and have numerous opportunities to network with scholars with wide-ranging interests.

Furthermore, you have the opportunity to experience all this in an encouraging atmosphere that is proud to support the efforts of graduate students and others who are new to academic pursuits.

To mitigate the cost of attendance to graduate students, AJHA waives the conference registration fee to all student presenters and offers significantly reduced membership dues. Those joining at the student rate retain all advantages of membership, including a subscription to the AJHA academic journal, American Journalism.

If this is your first time submitting a paper to the AJHA annual conference, we understand you may be in need of guidance. If you are wondering about the process of submitting a paper or what you can expect at the conference, please do not hesitate to contact either of us at the email addresses below.

We hope that you will consider submitting a paper for the 2015 conference. As AJHA members who have each started attending the annual conference within the past couple of years, we can say personally that the experience is invaluable to your development as a young academic and is just an all-around great time. To review the official conference call and submit your research, please visit www.ajhaonline.org and click on "Call for papers" on the national convention page under the event tab.

Sincerely,

Ken Ward
Graduate Student Committee Co-Chair
Wichita State University
ken.ward@wichita.edu

Katie Beardsley
Graduate Student Committee Co-Chair
Temple University
kathryn.beardsley@temple.edu